Congressional Scorecard 2006

The state Public Interest Research Groups (PIRGs) are nonprofit, nonpartisan public interest advocacy organizations. U.S. PIRG is the national advocacy office for state PIRGs across the country. With a combination of professional expertise, citizen power, and dogged persistence, the state PIRGs and U.S. PIRG work to preserve the environment, protect consumers, and promote good government.

Now in its twelfth year, the annual Congressional Scorecard has been one of the many citizenship tools used by U.S. PIRG and the state PIRGs to preserve the environment, protect consumers, and revitalize participation in our democratic process. Going door-to-door in cities and towns across the country, U.S. PIRG and state PIRG staff are distributing this year's Scorecard to more than one million households.

The 2006 Scorecard looks at the most important public interest votes taken between February 9, 2005 and February 1, 2006 in the U.S. Congress. These votes determined the direction of federal policy on critical issues ranging from environmental preservation to health care to consumer protections.

The Continuing Attacks on the Environment & Consumers

For more than three decades, Americans have shown overwhelming support for a clean, healthy environment and strong consumer protections. Americans have worked together to protect our air, land, and water by convincing Congress to pass cornerstone environmental laws such as the Safe Drinking Water Act and the Endangered Species Act. Consumers successfully demanded that Congress tighten corporate fiscal accountability and give us tools to fight identity theft.

Most Americans stand united behind strong environmental and consumer protections. Yet Congress and the Bush administration are helping the oil, timber, banking and a number of other industries roll back protections that Americans have come to expect.

Recent Congressional Attacks

In the 109th Congress, the House and Senate have continued efforts to weaken key environmental laws and take away consumer protections.

- In August 2005, after nearly five years of Congressional debate, President Bush signed into law an energy bill that is the most anti-environmental law in recent history. By failing to increase gas mileage standards for cars and SUVs, the bill does nothing to reduce our oil consumption or save consumers money at the pump. The House and Senate conferees dropped from the final bill Senate-approved provisions to increase clean renewable energy production and to support limits on global warming pollution. The bill instead rewards polluting energy industries with $25 billion in new subsidies and tramples on states' rights when siting new energy facilities.
- The administration and Congress backed proposals to eviscerate consumer rights under state laws by moving most class action lawsuits from state courts to federal courts. At the request of the credit card industry, Congress also passed a punitive measure rolling back consumer bankruptcy rights.
- Congress passed a budget and tax bill that cuts student aid by an estimated $12 billion over the next five years while giving more tax breaks to the wealthy.

Behind Closed Doors at the White House

In his second term, President Bush and his appointees are still allowing big corporations to weaken our environmental laws. For example:

- The coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge is one of America's last wild places. Even though the amount of oil in the Arctic Refuge would not support us for one year, Congress and the administration continue to try to open the area to oil and gas drilling.
- In 2005, the Bush administration proposed testing pesticides on infants and allowing chemical companies to use data from pesticides tested on pregnant women and children. In response, Congress adopted a six month moratorium on human pesticide testing and required the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to issue strict rules. The EPA rules, while offering minimum protections for some people, include loopholes that could continue to allow testing of pesticides on pregnant women and children.
- In 2005, the Bush administration proposed roll-backs to the Toxics Release Inventory program, the basic right-to-know program that provides the public with pollution information every year. Under the Bush administration changes, polluters could release 10 times more toxic chemical pollution into our air, water, and land before they would be required to report it.

In the past few months, Bush administration agencies also have launched an unprecedented assault on consumer rights. For example, the Food and Drug Administration has finalized a rule immunizing drug manufacturers from liability under state laws if they comply with modest federal label requirements.

U.S. PIRG: Keeping Watch

The Bush administration and Congress should reverse their present course—keep our air, land and water clean, protect the last remaining wild places, and safeguard consumers. U.S. PIRG will continue to be in the halls of Congress and in front of the Bush administration fighting for consumers and the environment.

Public Interest Heroes & Zeros

Three members of the Senate and 39 members of the House took the public interest position on every vote that U.S. PIRG tracked for the 2006 Scorecard—they are considered Public Interest Heroes. Thirteen members of the Senate and 92 members of the House did not take the public interest position on any of the votes that U.S. PIRG tracked—they are considered Public Interest Zeros. Scores reflect votes taken between February 9, 2005 and February 1, 2006.

Senate Vote Descriptions

1. Arctic Refuge/Stop Drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. In December 2005, after a bipartisan coalition in the House forced the removal of Arctic Refuge drilling language from the final budget reconciliation bill, Senator Ted Stevens (R-AK) cynically inserted drilling language into the Defense Appropriations bill. The must-pass bill included funds for both U.S. troops and hurricane relief. Sen. Maria Cantwell (D-WA) and other drilling opponents led an effort to remove the drilling language from the Defense bill and filibustered Sen. Stevens' attempt to include drilling. On December 21, 2005, the Senate voted 56-44 to end debate on the bill, falling short of the 60 votes necessary to move the bill forward (Roll Call #364). The House and Senate then approved a revised conference report that included other drilling provisions but left the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge intact. PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

2. Arctic Refuge/Stop Drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. In 2005, the Senate Budget Committee, led by chairman Judd Gregg (R-NH), included language in the Budget Resolution that counted revenue from oil and gas leasing and drilling in the coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. Including this kind of revenue language in the Budget Resolution has been used in the past as a first step toward passing legislation that would actually authorize drilling and leasing in the Arctic Refuge. Sen. Maria Cantwell (D-WA) introduced an amendment to remove the "assumption of revenue" language from the Budget Resolution. On March 16, 2005, the Senate rejected the amendment 49-51 (Roll Call #52). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

3. Arctic Refuge/Stop Drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. In March 2005, the Senate voted to include language in the Senate Budget resolution that counted revenue from oil and gas leasing and drilling in the coastal plain of the Arctic Refuge. On November 3, 2005, the Senate voted 52-47 to approve the budget reconciliation package, which included this "assumption of revenue" language (Roll Call #303). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

4. Energy/Reject Anti-Consumer, Anti-Environment Bill. After the House passed its energy bill, the Senate passed a slightly better energy bill that included a requirement to increase renewable energy production and acknowledged the need for a mandatory limit on global warming pollution. However, when the House-Senate energy conference committee convened in the summer of 2005, it abandoned these few positive Senate provisions. The result was an energy conference report that would not allow drilling in the Arctic but would reward polluting energy industries with $25 billion in new subsidies and trample on states' rights when siting new energy facilities. On July 29, 2005, the Senate approved the conference report for H.R. 6 by a vote of 74-26. President Bush signed the bill into law on August 8, 2005 (Roll Call #213). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

5. Energy/Increase Clean Renewable Energy Production. A renewable energy standard requires power companies to generate an increasing percentage of electricity from clean renewable sources, such as solar and wind. Shifting to renewable energy will cut global warming pollution, improve air quality, and help diversify our electricity sources. Studies done by the Energy Information Administration show that a national standard increasing the amount of electricity generated by renewable energy to 20% by 2020 is reasonable and achievable. So far, 21 states have passed renewable energy standards. During Senate consideration of the energy bill, Senator Jeff Bingaman (D-NM) offered an amendment to set a national renewable energy standard of 10% by 2020. On June 16, 2005, the Senate adopted the amendment by a vote of 52-48 (Roll Call #141). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

6. Energy/Protect States' Rights in Siting of Energy Facilities. Liquefied natural gas (LNG) terminals pose potential safety hazards for local communities; an explosion at an LNG facility could kill and injure people within three-quarters of a mile. Given the dangers, state and local governments are intervening in siting decisions at several proposed facilities on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. In its original form, H.R. 6, the energy bill, contained a provision that preempted all state authority and made the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) the main decision maker for siting these facilities. On June 22, 2005, by a 52-45 vote, the Senate voted to table an amendment offered by Senator Dianne Feinstein (D-CA) to strike the provision and give governors 45 days to agree or disagree with federal siting decisions (Roll Call #146). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

7. Energy/Increasing Funding for Energy Assistance. Even before Hurricane Katrina hit, natural gas prices were climbing. After Katrina, natural gas prices skyrocketed to the highest in more than a decade. Americans around the country faced dramatically higher winter home heating prices. The federal government has historically funded low income heating assistance to help families meet winter heating costs and also to help weatherize their homes. Unfortunately, funding has not kept pace with need, so that by 2002 only 13 percent of eligible families were receiving this assistance. During consideration of the Senate budget resolution, Senators Jack Reed (D-RI) and Susan Collins (R-ME) offered an amendment to increase low income heating assistance by $2.92 billion. Opponents of the amendment raised a procedural issue to require a two-thirds majority vote. On October 26, 2005, the Senate voted 54-43 to approve the amendment, which was not enough to overcome the procedural hurdle (Roll Call #270). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

8. Energy/Cut Tax Breaks for Big Oil Companies. In 2005, the oil industry enjoyed record profits because of high oil and gasoline prices. At the same time, the Congressional Research Service has stated that the oil industry pays taxes at a rate significantly lower than any other industry. One tax break enables oil and gas companies to expense so-called intangible drilling costs associated with exploration and development, such as labor, fuel, repairs to drilling equipment and supplies. This tax break is worth $2.4 billion over five years to the oil and gas industry. On November 17, 2005, Senator Dianne Feinstein (D-CA) offered an amendment to the tax reconciliation bill to repeal this tax break for ExxonMobil and other large oil companies. The Senate voted 48-51 against the amendment (Roll Call #332). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

9. Energy/Cut Subsidies for Nuclear Power and Coal. The Senate energy bill contained $8.8 billion in subsidies for the nuclear industry, $5.6 billion for the coal industry, and $7.4 billion for the oil and gas industry. In addition to these specific subsidies, it also took the unprecedented step of subsidizing an unlimited number of energy projects, including nuclear power and fossil fuels plants. The bill provided an unlimited number of loan guarantees, covering up to 80% of the cost of each project. These subsidies disproportionately benefit capital intensive industries such as coal and nuclear power. On June 23, 2005, Senators John Sununu (R-NH) and Ron Wyden (D-OR) offered an amendment to strip these subsidies from the energy bill. The Senate rejected the amendment 21-76 (Roll Call #155). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

10. Global Warming/Resolution to Curb Global Warming. Global warming is the one of the most pressing issues our country faces, but the federal government does not limit global warming emissions. As a result, U.S. global warming emissions increased by 16% from 1990 to 2004, and the Department of Energy projects that emissions will rise an additional 46% by 2025. As part of its 2005 energy bill deliberations, the Senate considered a non-binding "Sense of the Senate" resolution calling for a mandatory program to "slow, stop, and reverse" global warming emissions. On June 22, 2005, the Senate approved the resolution by a vote of 53-44 (Roll Call #149). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

11. Global Warming and Energy/Increase Auto Gas Mileage Standards. America is too dependent on oil; this dependence has repercussions for the environment, for consumers and for our national security. Although the U.S. possesses only 3% of the world's oil reserves, Americans consume more than a quarter of the world's oil. America's cars and light trucks comprise an estimated 40% of U.S. oil consumption. The U.S. could substantially reduce both its dependence on oil and its global warming pollution by using existing technology to raise the vehicle mileage-per-gallon (mpg) of new cars and light trucks. Under the corporate average fuel economy (CAFE) standards, each manufacturer's fleet of light trucks, including SUVs, minivans and pickup trucks, is required to meet a standard of only 20.7 mpg; cars must meet a higher 27.5 mpg standard. During consideration of the Senate energy bill, Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) proposed an amendment to raise the CAFE standard for cars and light trucks to 40 mpg by 2016. This would have saved 3.1 million barrels of oil a day—combined, as much oil as the U.S. currently imports from the Persian Gulf and could extract from the Arctic Refuge and off the California coast—and would have prevented the release of more than 500 million tons of global warming pollution. On June 23, 2005, the Senate rejected the amendment by a vote of 28-67 (Roll Call #157). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

12. Clean Air/Reduce Mercury Pollution. Mercury can affect the way children think, learn, and grow, causing problems ranging from learning disabilities to mental retardation. In March 2005, the Bush administration finalized new rules to give power plants, the largest U.S. source of mercury emissions, until 2018 to reduce their mercury emissions. In June 2005, Senators Patrick Leahy (D-VT) and Susan Collins (R-ME) introduced a rare Congressional Review Act resolution to overturn the Bush rule. On September 13, 2005, the Senate rejected the resolution by a 47-51 vote (Roll Call #225). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

13. Preservation/Cut Subsidies for Road Building in Tongass National Forest. In June 2005, the Senate voted on a bill to build taxpayer subsidized roads in the Tongass National Forest in southeast Alaska, the world's largest remaining old-growth temperate rainforest. The construction of roads is a prelude to logging and development. During consideration of the Interior Appropriations bill, Senators John Sununu (R-NH) and Jeff Bingaman (D-NM) introduced an amendment to end taxpayer subsidies for new commercial logging roads in the Tongass. On June 29, 2005, their amendment failed by a 39-59 vote (Roll Call #164). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

14. Toxics/Stop Testing Pesticides on People. Pesticides are inherently toxic chemicals manufactured solely for the purpose of killing living organisms such as insects and rodents. Because of their toxic nature, federal law requires EPA to set strict human health standards for pesticide exposure. Some pesticide companies, however, want to test their products directly on humans to prove just how much of a dose humans can withstand before becoming sick. Pesticide companies use the results of human testing to try to convince EPA to allow more pesticides in food and household products and to justify keeping older and more dangerous pesticides on the market. In 1998, the Clinton administration determined that human pesticide tests are unsafe, unethical, and scientifically unacceptable and banned EPA from considering the results of human tests. At the behest of the pesticide industry, the Bush administration reversed the Clinton ban on human pesticide testing. In response, Senator Barbara Boxer (D-CA) offered an amendment to the FY 2006 Interior Appropriations bill to restore the Clinton moratorium on human pesticide testing. On June 29, 2005, the Senate approved the amendment by a bipartisan vote of 60-37 (Roll Call #162). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

15. Oceans/Protect America's Coasts from Drilling. For almost 25 years, Congress has voted to protect our precious coastlines and marine ecosystems from new oil and gas drilling and development.

These votes have prevented the Department of Interior from allowing new drilling along the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) in the eastern Gulf of Mexico off Florida's west coast, Atlantic and Pacific seaboard, and certain ecologically fragile areas off Alaska. The Energy Policy Act of 2005 (H.R. 6), however, included language to strip some of these protections and require an inventory of potential oil and gas resources under the entire OCS, including the areas currently off-limits to drilling. This inventory would use seismic surveys that harm marine mammals and fish with large bursts of underwater sound. Senators Bill Nelson (D-FL) and Mel Martinez (R-FL) offered an amendment to remove the inventory language from the energy bill. On June 21, 2005, the Senate rejected this amendment by a vote of 44-52 (Roll Call #143). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

16. Student Aid/Stop the $12 Billion Cut to Student Loans. The 2005 budget reconciliation package included the single largest cut to student aid programs in history: $12 billion over the next five years. These cuts could not come at a worse time for middle class families and students. Over the past ten years, college costs have skyrocketed while the federal government and states have reduced funding for higher education. As a result, more students and families are forced to take out larger loans to pay for a college education. On December 21, 2005, the Senate approved the budget reconciliation 51-50, with the vice president casting the deciding vote (Roll Call #363). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

17. Student Aid/Increase Funding of Pell Grants by $5.4 Billion. As college costs have continued to rise, the federal government has failed to increase funding for critical college student grant programs such as the Pell Grant. Senator Ted Kennedy (D-MA) introduced an amendment to the FY06 Budget to increase the maximum Pell Grant award by $450 to $4,500 and restore funding for TRIO, GEAR UP, LEAP, and Perkins loans. These student aid programs are critical for ensuring access to affordable higher education for middle and low-income students. On March 17, 2005, the Senate approved this amendment 51-49 (Roll Call #68). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

18. Consumer/Oppose Weakening Consumer Bankruptcy Rights. Even though most bankruptcies are the result of job layoffs, divorce, or sudden illness, the Senate and House passed and sent to the President a bill (S. 256) to weaken bankruptcy protections. Forcefully backed by the credit card industry, this bill severely restricts the ability of financially strapped consumers to make a fresh start through bankruptcy. The bill creates onerous legal, financial and paperwork burdens for debtors of modest means while continuing to allow affluent debtors in some states to file for bankruptcy protection and retain expensive homes. Furthermore, it does virtually nothing to rein in abusive creditor practices that help lead consumers into insupportable debt. On March 8, 2005, the Senate approved a motion on a 69-31 vote to end further debate on S. 256 (Roll Call #29). The bill was signed into law by the President on April 20, 2005 and took effect in October 2005.

PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

19. Consumer/Improve Credit Disclosures. During debate on the so-called bankruptcy reform bill (S. 256), consumer champions led by Senator Ted Kennedy (D-MA) offered a series of unsuccessful amendments to rein in the worst credit card industry practices. Senator Daniel Akaka (D-HI) offered an amendment to the bankruptcy bill to require all credit card monthly statements to disclose the number of years and months it would take to pay off the card and the interest accrued if the consumer paid only the minimum required. On March 2, 2005, the Senate defeated the Akaka amendment on a vote of 40-59 (Roll Call #15). The bill, which took effect in October 2005, includes a weaker, generalized industry-approved disclosure that will not reduce high-cost credit card debt. PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

20. Consumer/Oppose Passage of Class Action Bill. Class action lawsuits are an especially effective consumer tool for victims of “nickel, dime and dollar” rip-offs, such as unfair credit card practices, where individuals cannot afford their own attorneys. Class action lawsuits are also important for victims of environmental contamination or civil rights violations. The falsely-labeled Class Action Fairness Act (S. 5) makes it harder for consumers victimized by dangerous products or unfair financial practices to band together into a group, or class, to sue wrongdoers. The bill forces most class actions out of consumer-friendly state courts and into federal courts, where corporate wrongdoers can take advantage of restrictive federal court procedures to delay and weaken the cases against them. Many legitimate cases also could be thrown of federal courts on technicalities intentionally left in the final bill by its sponsors. On February 9, 2005, the Senate approved the bill on a vote of 72-26 (Roll Call #9), which then passed the House on February 17, 2005. The President signed it into law on February 18, 2005. PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

21. Consumer/Protect Class Action Rights. During debate on the falsely labeled Class Action Fairness Act (S. 5), Senators Dianne Feinstein (D-CA) and Jeff Bingaman (D-NM) proposed an amendment to make it clear that federal courts could certify multi-state class actions based on state laws. Otherwise, most victims of financial rip-offs, unsafe products or environmental contamination would be unable to hold corporate wrongdoers accountable. Consumers from smaller states, where classes of victims might be too small to spread the costs of a single-state lawsuit in the federal courts, would be particularly at risk. On February 9, 2005, the Senate rejected the Feinstein-Bingaman amendment on a vote of 38-61 (Roll Call #7). The President signed the bill into law on February 18, 2005. PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

22. Trade/Reject Anti-Consumer, Anti-Environment Central American Free Trade Agreement. So called “free trade” agreements should promote fair trade, not undercut strong environmental, consumer and labor standards in the U.S. or other signatory countries. The latest such agreement, the Central American Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA), fails to ensure that food safety and other “sanitary and phytosanitary” standards would be adequate to protect public health and safety and the environment in the U.S. and Central America. Among other gross deficiencies, the agreement expands the use of closed, extra-judicial tribunals to decide challenges to regulatory actions protecting consumers, investors or the environment. On June 30, 2005, the Senate passed S. 1307, implementing CAFTA, on a vote of 54-45 (Roll Call #170). It became law on August 2, 2005. PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

House Vote Descriptions

1. Arctic Refuge/Stop Drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. In December 2005, following the Senate's lead, the House voted on a Defense Appropriations bill that included drilling in the Arctic Refuge. The pro-drilling language had been cynically added to the bill by Senator Ted Stevens (R-AK) after a bipartisan coalition in the House forced the removal of drilling language from the final budget reconciliation bill. The must-pass bill included funds for both U.S. troops and hurricane relief. Voting to bring the Defense Appropriations bill to the House floor became a de facto vote on Arctic drilling. On December 19, 2005, the House adopted the rule providing for House floor consideration by a 214-201 vote (Roll Call #666). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

2. Arctic Refuge/Stop Drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. The House energy bill (H.R. 6) included several provisions to increase oil and gas drilling, including one to allow oil and gas development in the coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, one of America's last wild places. On April 20, 2005, Arctic champions Reps. Ed Markey (D-MA) and Nancy Johnson (R-CT) offered an amendment stripping the Arctic Refuge drilling language out of the House energy bill, keeping the coastal plain of the Arctic Refuge off limits to oil and gas drilling. The amendment failed by a 200-231 vote (Roll Call #122). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

3. Arctic Refuge/Stop Drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. In March 2006, the House Budget Committee, led by chairman Jim Nussle (R-IA), included language in the Budget Resolution that counted revenue from oil and gas leasing and drilling in the coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. Including this type of revenue language in a Budget Resolution has been used in the past as a first step toward passing legislation to authorize oil and gas leasing and drilling in the Arctic Refuge. The Budget Resolution conference report contained instructions to open the Refuge to oil and gas leasing and development. On April 28, 2005, the House voted to adopt the Budget Resolution conference report by a 214-211 vote (Roll Call #149). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

4. Energy/Reject Dirty, Dangerous Energy Bill.

After the House passed its version of the energy bill, the Senate passed a slightly better energy bill that included a requirement to increase renewable energy production and acknowledged the need for a mandatory limit on global warming pollution. When the House-Senate energy conference committee convened in the summer of 2005, however, it abandoned these few positive Senate provisions. The result was an energy conference report that would not allow drilling in the Arctic but would reward polluting energy industries with $25 billion in new subsidies and trample on states' rights when siting new energy facilities. On July 28, 2005, the House approved the conference report (H.R. 6) by a vote of 275-156 (Roll Call #445). President Bush signed the bill into law on August 8, 2005. PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

5. Energy/Reject Dirty, Dangerous Energy Bill. Early in 2005, the House introduced an anti-environmental and anti-consumer energy bill (H.R. 6) based on the President's energy plan. The House energy bill allowed drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge and rewarded polluting oil, coal and nuclear companies with new tax breaks and subsidies. The House energy bill did little to make our homes, businesses, or cars more energy efficient and did not require a significant shift to clean, renewable energy sources. The bill also weakened important drinking water and surface water protections and let oil companies off the hook for polluting drinking water supplies. On April 21, 2005, the House approved H.R. 6 by a vote of 249-183 (Roll Call #132). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

6. Energy/Reject Big Oil Giveaway Bill. After Hurricanes Katrina and Rita shut down refineries and oil platforms in the Gulf of Mexico, gasoline prices skyrocketed across the country. Instead of enacting policies to help ease consumer costs at the pump, the House Energy and Commerce Committee developed another energy bill (H.R. 3893) to increase subsidies to oil companies and weaken clean air protections. The original bill would have allowed 20,000 industrial facilities, including power plants, to increase their emissions without installing modern pollution controls. Research showed that this rollback would increase pollution and cause at least 70,000 additional deaths each year. House leadership eventually dropped this provision in the face of overwhelming opposition. On October 7, 2005, by a narrow vote of 212-210, the House passed the scaled-back bill, which still included new oil subsidies and could obstruct state and local efforts to improve air quality (Roll Call #519). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

7. Global Warming/Increase Auto Gas Mileage Standards. America is too dependent on oil; this dependence has repercussions for the environment, for consumers and for our national security. The U.S. could reduce its dependence on oil and cut its global warming pollution by using existing technology to raise the vehicle mileage-per-gallon (mpg) of new cars and SUVs. The House energy bill (H.R. 6), however, did little to nothing to cut America's oil consumption. Reps. Sherwood Boehlert (R-NY) and Ed Markey (D-MA) introduced an amendment to the energy bill to reduce the amount of oil consumed by U.S. automobiles by 5% by 2010. The amendment left it up to the Bush administration to determine how to achieve the reduction. On April 20, 2005, the House rejected the amendment by a vote of 177-254 (Roll Call #121). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

8. Clean Water/Make Polluters Pay for Contaminating Groundwater. MTBE (methyl tertiary butyl ether), a toxic gasoline additive and potential human carcinogen, has contaminated drinking water supplies around the country. MTBE leaks out of underground gasoline storage tanks and from gasoline spills, spreads rapidly in groundwater, and is difficult and expensive to remove. The estimated cost of cleaning up MTBE contamination nationwide is tens of billions of dollars. The 2005 House energy bill (H.R. 6) originally included a liability shield to protect oil companies from product liability lawsuits filed by communities to hold the polluters accountable for MTBE contamination in groundwater. This liability waiver would have undermined more than 140 lawsuits filed by states, counties, towns, and water suppliers, shifting billions of dollars in cleanup costs from oil and chemical companies to state and local taxpayers. Rep. Lois Capps (D-CA) offered an amendment to remove the MTBE liability shield from the House energy bill. On April 21, 2005, the House rejected the amendment by a vote of 213-219 (Roll Call #129). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

9. Energy/Environmental Regulation of Oil Refineries. Oil companies often blame tight refining capacity on environmental barriers to building new refineries. Most research suggests, however, that oil companies intentionally keep refining capacity low to push up oil and gasoline prices. The House energy bill (H.R. 6) included provisions to preempt state regulations and relax public health and environmental laws for the siting of refineries. Rep. Hilda Solis (D-CA) offered an amendment to remove the refinery provisions from the House energy bill. On April 20, 2005, the House rejected the Solis amendment by a 182-248 vote (Roll Call #115). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

10. Energy/End Giveaways to Big Oil. The House energy bill (H.R. 6) included a provision to allow oil companies to pay no royalties on oil extracted from the Gulf of Mexico. These companies are already awash in profits. In analyzing a similar provision in the last Congress, the Congressional Budget Office estimated that the offshore royalty suspensions in the energy bill would cost $91 million over 2003-2012. Moreover, losses to the Treasury caused by royalty relief would continue well beyond the 10 year scoring period. On April 21, 2005, Rep. Raul Grijalva (D-AZ) offered an amendment to H.R. 6 to strip this provision; it was defeated 203-227 (Roll Call #128). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

11. Consumer/Protect Consumers from Price Gouging. Because of increased consolidation and poorly-crafted state deregulation of the electricity industry, consumers are more vulnerable than ever to price gouging and blackouts. The House energy bill (H.R. 6) actually made this problem worse by repealing one of the only pro-consumer electricity laws on the books, the Public Utility Holding Company Act (PUHCA). Under PUHCA, the Securities and Exchange Commission requires large, multi-state companies that own utilities – known as registered holding companies – from using the kind of financial structures and accounting practices that helped lead to the downfall of Enron. PUHCA helps shield consumers and investors from these risky business decisions by requiring registered holding companies to invest only in businesses needed to run the utility. Rep. John Dingell (D-MI) offered an amendment to remove the electricity section of the energy bill and instead strengthen consumer protections. On April 20, 2005, the House rejected the amendment by a vote of 188-243 (Roll Call #123). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

12. Energy/Protect States' Rights on Siting of Energy Facilities. Liquefied natural gas (LNG) terminals pose serious safety risks for local communities; an explosion at an LNG facility could kill and injure people within three-quarters of a mile. Given the dangers, state and local governments are intervening in siting decisions at several proposed facilities on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. In its original form, H.R. 6, the energy bill, contained a provision that preempted all state authority and made the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) the main decision maker for siting these facilities. On April 21, 2005, by a 194-237 vote, the House rejected an amendment by Rep. Michael Castle (R-DE) to strike the provision and restore state and local authority (Roll Call #131). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

13. Energy/Cut Nuclear Subsidies and Increase Energy Efficiency Funding. For the past 50 years, the federal government has spent the vast majority of federal research and development funds on polluting energy sources such as oil, coal and nuclear power, while giving short shrift to energy efficiency and clean renewable energy sources. Recently, the Department of Energy has started increasing funding for nuclear waste reprocessing, an expensive program that will increase the complexity and amount of radioactive waste. Meanwhile, funding has been cut for energy efficiency programs, which return many dollars in energy savings for each dollar spent on research. On May 24, 2005, Rep. Ed Markey (D-MA) offered an amendment to the energy and water appropriations bill to shift $15 million from dangerous nuclear waste reprocessing programs toward energy efficiency. The amendment was defeated 110-312 (Roll Call #207). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: YES

14. Endangered Species/Protect the Endangered Species Act. In the fall of 2005, House Resources Chairman Richard Pombo (R-CA) introduced legislation in the House that seeks to fundamentally alter and weaken the Endangered Species Act. The controversial Pombo legislation (H.R. 3824) eliminates protections across the board for threatened and endangered species while creating several new loopholes and corporate giveaways. The Pombo legislation places hundreds of species at risk of losing the protections that have saved them from extinction. On September 29, 2005, the House approved the harmful Pombo legislation by a vote of 229-193 (Roll Call #506). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

15. Oceans/Protect Coasts from Oil and Gas

Drilling. For almost 25 years, Congress has voted to protect our precious coastlines and marine ecosystems from oil and gas drilling and development. These votes have prevented the Department of Interior from allowing new drilling in the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) off the west coast of Florida, the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard and the coasts of Alaska. On May 19, 2005, Rep. John Peterson (R-PA) offered an amendment to the Interior Appropriations bill (H.R. 2361) on the floor of the House to remove the prohibition against expanded offshore drilling. This amendment failed by a vote of 157-262 (Roll Call #192). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

16. Student Aid/Stop the $12 Billion Cut to Student Loans. The final budget reconciliation package of 2005 included the single largest cut to student aid programs in history: $12 billion over the next five years. These cuts could not come at a worse time for middle class families and students. Over the past ten years, college costs have skyrocketed, while the federal government and states across the country have cut funding for higher education. As a result, more students and more families are forced to take out larger loans to pay for a college education. On February 1, 2006, the House approved this bill 216-214 (Roll Call #4). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

17. Student Aid/Stop the $14.3 Billion Cut to Student Loans. The original House budget reconciliation bill cut $14.3 billion directly from the federal student loan programs that help millions of students and parents afford college each year. The House reconciliation package made loan consolidation more expensive and increased the cap on student loan interest rates from 6.8% to 8.25%. In addition, the reconciliation bill captured excess subsidies that students pay to lenders; rather than directing these savings back to students through lower interest rates or additional need based aid, the bill directed these subsidies out of the student loan programs. On November 18, 2005, the House approved this bill 217-215 (Roll Call #601). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

18. Consumer/Protect Consumer Bankruptcy Rights. Despite independent research showing that most bankruptcies are the result of job layoffs, divorce, or sudden illness, the House passed a bill (S. 256) to weaken bankruptcy protections. Forcefully backed by the credit card industry, S. 256 severely restricts the ability of financially strapped consumers to make a fresh start through bankruptcy. The bill creates onerous legal, financial and paperwork burdens for debtors of modest means while continuing to allow affluent debtors in some states to file for bankruptcy protection and retain expensive homes. Furthermore, it does virtually nothing to rein in abusive creditor practices that help lead consumers into insupportable debt. On April 14, 2005, the House passed S. 256 by a vote of 302-126 (Roll Call #108). The bill was signed into law by the President on April 20, 2005 and took effect in October 2005. PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

19. Consumer/Protect Class Action. Class action lawsuits are an especially effective consumer tool for victims of "nickel, dime and dollar" rip-offs, such as unfair credit card practices, where individuals cannot afford their own attorneys. Class action lawsuits are also important for victims of environmental contamination or civil rights violations. The falsely-labeled Class Action Fairness Act makes it harder for consumers victimized by dangerous products or unfair financial practices to band together into a group, or class, to sue wrongdoers. The bill forces most class actions out of consumer-friendly state courts and into federal courts, where corporate wrongdoers can take advantage of restrictive federal court procedures to delay and weaken the cases against them. Many legitimate cases also will be automatically thrown out of the federal courts on technicalities intentionally left in the final bill by its sponsors. On February 17, 2005, the House approved the bill on a vote of 279-149 (Roll Call #38). The President signed it into law the next day, February 18, 2005. PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

20. Health Care/Protect Victims of Medical Malpractice. The so-called Health Act (H.R. 5) places unfair limits on the non-economic damages available to victims of medical malpractice by doctors, HMOs, hospitals, and drug companies. These damages for pain and suffering (severe disfigurement, loss of child-bearing capacity, brain damage, etc) are often the only fair compensation available to children or non-working women. Rising medical malpractice insurance rates are not caused by lawsuits, as proponents of this bill claim, but by lack of doctor oversight to prevent medical errors and by reckless investments by the insurance industry. On July 28, 2005, the House approved the Health Act by a vote of 230-194 (Roll Call #449). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

21. Democracy/Protect Online Freedom of

Speech. In 2005, Rep. Jeb Hensarling (R-TX) introduced a bill (H.R. 1606) to allow state political parties involved in federal campaigns to solicit unlimited contributions from wealthy interests for any money raised for online advertising and other web based campaigning. The bill offered no exemptions for independent individual online speakers (something many bloggers were requesting). It did, however, create an enormous loophole to undermine campaign finance laws. The House voted 225-182 for the bill, but it did not pass because it was brought up under special rules that require a two-thirds majority (Roll Call #559). PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO

22. Trade/Reject Anti-Consumer, Anti-Environment Central American Free Trade Agreement. So called "free trade" agreements should promote fair trade, not undercut strong environmental, consumer and labor standards in the U.S. or other signatory countries. The latest such agreement, the Central American Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA), fails to ensure that food safety and other "sanitary and phytosanitary" standards would be adequate to protect public health and safety and the environment in the U.S. and Central America. Among other gross deficiencies, the agreement expands the use of closed, extra-judicial tribunals to decide challenges to regulatory actions protecting consumers, investors or the environment. On July 28, 2005, the House narrowly passed H.R. 3045, implementing CAFTA on a vote of 217-215 (Roll Call #443). The President signed the bill into law on August 2, 2005. PUBLIC INTEREST VOTE: NO
