

Board of Directors

Wendy Wendlandt, President

Wendy is the Political Director for The Public Interest Network, where she assists network organizations, including Environment America, in developing and running campaigns and projects. She got her start with WashPIRG, the Washington Public Interest Research Group, in 1984. She lives in Los Angeles, California.

Margie Alt, Executive Director

Margie is the Co-Founder of the Climate Action Campaign and a widely respected leader in the environmental community. Prior to the launch of Environment America, Margie spent 25 years helping to build U.S. PIRG and the state PIRGs (Public Interest Research Groups). She is based in Boston.

Luke Metzger, Secretary

Luke is the founding Director of Environment Texas. He has been recognized as a top environmental advocate in Texas and led dozens of successful environmental campaigns, including winning permanent protection for the Christmas Mountains of Big Bend. He lives in Austin with his wife and children.

Elizabeth Ouzts, Treasurer

Elizabeth is a freelance writer specializing in energy and environmental topics based in Raleigh. She previously served as Environment America's Communications Director, and was the founding Executive Director of Environment North Carolina, where she conceived and led campaigns on a number of environmental issues.

Douglas Phelps, Director

Doug is the President and CEO of the Public Interest Network. He is also the founder of the Fund for the Public Interest, a national nonprofit that has raised over $700M for grassroots non-profit groups since 1982. Doug serves on the Boards of Green Corps, Green Century Funds and the National Environmental Law Center.

Doug O'Malley, Director

Doug leads Environment New Jersey and has worked on a broad array of environmental issues over the past 15 years in Trenton. His work has included campaigns to protect New Jersey's waterways from fracking waste, fast track the state's clean energy economy, and build support for the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative.
